CAPELLA TERMS AND DEFINITIONS

Throughout your academic career at Capella University, you’ll likely come across specialized words and phrases that are used to indicate your academic status, distinguish between degree-related requirements, and recognize many of your achievements.

Academic recognition—Capella University acknowledges the academic accomplishments of its learners through recognitions including the Dean’s List, the President’s List, and Graduation with Honors. Eligibility is based on minimum cumulative grade point average (GPA) and other academic requirements in eligible programs.

Academic standing—determined by academic performance and measured by the cumulative grade point average (GPA) and program-specific requirements.

Certification—a professional credential issued by a private organization designating specialized knowledge or skills.

Commencement—an optional ceremony that is a recognition of the conferral of a degree. To participate in a commencement ceremony, learners must have completed all degree program requirements or be successfully progressing toward conferment and submit their RSVP by the deadline required to attend.
Competency-based education (CBE) — Competencies are expressions of the knowledge, skills, and abilities required to perform a given task in a specific context.

In competency-based education, the curriculum is organized around professionally relevant competencies and is built to help learners acquire or master these competencies. Competencies, then, build toward program learning outcomes, which are statements of what students can expect to be able to do with their knowledge upon successful completion of the program. All Capella programs are outcomes and competency based.

Outcomes-based learning involves defining what success looks like in a particular field and then developing the most direct educational path to that success. Capella creates academic programming based on current scholarship and professional standards and guidelines in each field. We also work with employers to find out what they expect from their employees. We use these insights to focus our academic programs on specific, measurable expectations called learning outcomes.

Completion of Advanced Graduate Study (CAGS) — the achievement of a specific, significant doctoral milestone: successful completion of doctoral course work and requirements to establish eligibility for the next phase of doctoral studies. This recognition is not an academic degree or credential, but it marks a significant academic achievement.

Conferral — the issue of a degree or certificate by Capella University.

Degree- and Certificate-Related Terms

Certificate — a non-degree credential at a specific level awarded upon successful completion of course work and learning experiences in an academic or professional field.

The bachelor's degree is earned using the designated master's courses. Upon completion of the bachelor's degree, learners enroll in the corresponding master's degree program. The master's degree is awarded upon completion of the remaining program requirements of the master's specialization. Examples of Capella's combined options include:
- Combined BS/MBA option
- Combined BS/MPH option
- Combined BS/MS in Information Systems and Technology Management option

Licensure—a state requirement for learners who want to practice as professionals in specific occupations. Each type of license has unique educational requirements, including type of degree, course work, and experience hours. Different states have different requirements for the same type of license. It is essential that learners know these requirements and structure their program accordingly. Learners should also be aware of additional requirements, such as criminal history, personal background, examinations, and post-graduate supervised hours.

Maximum time to degree completion—the time allotted for learners to complete their degree or certificate program. Maximum time to completion begins on the learner’s initial program start date and continues regardless of course activity, enrollment status, or change of specialization until a degree is conferred.

Prior Learning Assessment (PLA)—an academically approved means of evaluating and measuring (assessing) knowledge that is accomplished outside of a Capella courseroom. There is a limited number of degree programs at Capella to which PLA may be applied. Capella uses two different approaches to PLA. A petition is a written assessment where learners demonstrate their mastery of course competencies. It recognizes learners who have achieved previous learning. Examples can include learning gained through work experience, certifications, professional development, training, hobbies, and other types of non-academic course work. Documented credit allows learners the opportunity to earn credit toward their degree with specific industry-recognized certifications that align with Capella University competencies.

Program start date—reflects the official start date of a learner’s academic program and is assigned when a learner first registers for at least one course that is part of a degree or certificate program.

Residencies—face-to-face learning experiences varying in length and number according to program and specialization. Certain programs and specializations also include an online course component as part of the residency experience.

Schools—Capella University has six schools: the School of Undergraduate Studies, the School of Business and Technology, the School of Education, the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, the School of Public Service Leadership, and the Harold Abel School of Social and Behavioral Sciences.

Transfer credit evaluation—a review of all non-Capella course work to determine the acceptance of transfer credits. The transfer credit evaluation is based on requirements published in the catalog that is current at the learner’s program start date. A transfer credit evaluation may be reissued when an enrolled learner requests a change of catalog, degree program, or specialization.
